

LAW STUDENTS

WHY LIGHTFOOT? OUR ASSOCIATES LEARN BY DOING WORK THAT MATTERS.

At Lightfoot, we know that young trial lawyers must have early and frequent opportunities to challenge themselves and grow. New associates work with many different partners and on many different types of cases. Our associates take depositions, draft and argue critical motions, engage in significant client contact and try cases with our partners.

WITNESS INTERVIEWS

Not only do associates grow their careers at Lightfoot, but they also love working here, too. The career and recruiting website Vault named Lightfoot the “Best Midsize Law Firm to Work For” four years in a row based on our high ratings in its midsize quality of life, quality of work, inclusion and firm culture rankings.

Lawyers here shoot straight with you. They shoot straight with clients, opposing lawyers and judges. That was attractive to me as I was making decisions about my career path a decade ago, and it's still attractive to me today. We've always been a 'what you see is what you get' place to work and practice, and that's an all-too-rare quality in law firms.

— James Gibson, Partner

Being a part of Lightfoot's summer associate program as a law student gave me a realistic glimpse into the everyday life of a trial lawyer and was ultimately why I fell in love with the firm's culture. I find comfort looking back on my experience as a summer associate knowing that it was all "real" – the work on cases, the courtroom experiences and the comradery.
